

PROJECT UPDATES

ID@Home

In It for the Long Haul: How COVID-19 Patient Experiences Inform Infectious Disease (ID) Research

In It for the Long Haul: How COVID-19 Patient Experiences Inform Infectious Disease (ID) Research

Join us for a FREE half-day conference on Wednesday, June 23, 2021!

Join us next week for this FREE half-day conference that will talk about how the planning, doing, and sharing of patient-centered outcomes research (PCOR) on COVID-19 and other infectious diseases (ID) will be critical to address the current crisis and prepare for future pandemics. There will be two panels that address important topics, specifically around “long haul COVID-19”, and they include “Challenges and opportunities around virtual engagement during COVID-19” and “How to address health systems issues related to COVID-19”.

There will a special speaker, Senator Christopher J. Van Hollen Jr. (MD-D) who will share some remarks and answer some questions.

More information about the conference and how to register can be found here: <https://idathome.org/>. We hope you will join us.