The Learning PCOR System Holds Final Deliberative Engagement Sessions

We had our fourth and final deliberative engagement session in December 2020. Following the previous deliberative sessions that talked about creating a Learning PCOR System by looking at Planning research (session 1), Doing the research (session 2), and Disseminating Research (session 3), session four was about "Bringing it all together."

BCT Partners gave an example of what a learning PCOR system could look like, via a live website, that pulled together the ideas from the first three deliberative sessions. The project team is now reading the comments and recommendations we got from those who took part in the fourth session. We will make a graphic that shares lessons learned with those who took part and the broader community in Spring 2021. We are grateful to everyone who took part in our deliberative sessions.

A Learning PCOR System will allow for information sharing across PCOR studies and will add in patients' preferences in a cultural context for healthcare delivery. In a Learning PCOR System, new information can be shared with patients and their doctors, communities, and stakeholders who can use that information to make better-informed decisions about their health.
